Today I'm going to read you a story. It's called _____.

The Crow and the Fox

One bright morning, a crow was flying around and saw a piece of cheese on a window sill. “Ooh, cheese! Yummy! Even if my friends beg me, I’m not sharing. Ha ha ha!” The crow quickly took the cheese in his beak and flew off high in the sky.

After flying far, far away, the crow landed on a branch. “I’ve never seen a bird as beautiful as you.” Upon hearing these wonderful words, the crow began to look around. “And how do you keep your feathers so shiny?” The crow could see the fox under the tree, praising him. “Hmmph! You can’t fool me! I know you’re just after my cheese,” said the crow. He quickly turned his head and pretended not to hear the fox’s words.

“Now, all you need is a beautiful singing voice, and you will be seen as the most amazing crow ever!” Then the fox turned around as if she were planning to leave. Now the crow wanted to show off his voice and sing for the fox as loud as he could, “Caw! Caw!”

Just as the crow opened his mouth, the cheese fell from his beak onto the ground. The fox ran for the fallen piece of cheese and took it in her mouth. “Thanks, Crow!” The crow realized he had finally fallen for the fox’s trick. But it was too late. “Waa! My cheese!”

(上台鞠躬) Hello, everyone! I am number ____.

Today I'm going to read you a story. It's called _____.

The Ant and the Bird

On a hot summer day, a little ant went down to the river for some water. As the little ant walked to the tip of the leaf to get a drink of water, a sudden gust of wind blew him into the river. "Help! Help! Someone please help!"

Nearby, a resting bird in a tree heard the ant screaming for help and went to see what was going on. "Oh no, little ant! I'm going to throw you a leaf. Get on top of it, okay?"

Thanks to the leaf, the ant was saved. And he was able to make it back onto the land again. "Phew! I'm saved! Thank you so much! I will never forget what you did for me!" said the ant.

When the little ant looked up to look at the bird, he saw a hunter aiming his bow and arrow at his new bird friend.

“It’s a hunter! Friend! Watch out! There’s a hunter! Quick! Fly away, Friend! Fly away!” Even after the ant’s cries, the bird still had no clue as to what was going on. The little ant didn’t know what to do except bite the hunter’s foot.

“Ouch!” The hunter threw down his bow and arrows and hopped in pain. “Ouch! Ouch!” The screaming startled the bird. He saw the hunter and quickly flew away. “Thank you, Ant! You saved my life!” “And you saved mine! Thank you so much!”

(上台鞠躬) Hello, everyone! I am number ____.

Today I'm going to read you a story. It's called _____.

The Oak and the Reed

The oak tree was very proud of itself. "My trunk is big and strong. My branches are thick and plenty. And my green leaves are shiny. There is no other tree that is as great as me." The oak tree would laugh at the thin stalk of the reed as it was bending with the breeze. "Reed! Oh, Reed! How do you survive with your skinny little stalk? Even with the slightest breeze, you move to and fro, to and fro. Ha, ha, ha!"

No matter what the oak tree said, the reed just swayed back and forth quietly. Then, one day, a storm hit. Lightning lashed and thunder crashed. "I'm going to be fine with my big strong trunk. But what about you?" The oak tree stood strong and proud as it fought hard against the storm.

But, just then, a huge gust of wind broke the oak tree's trunk in half. The reed finally spoke, "Hey, Oak Tree! It's great that you have a strong trunk. But, sometimes it's more important to bend with the wind." The reed kept bending until the storm passed.
